

Janice Kinney

Janice Kinney, Florenceville-Bristol resident of 38 years and town councillor for eight, is resigning from her position on town council. Kinney's work is mainly based in Fredericton, and so she is relocating to accommodate this. When asked about her time on council, Kinney says, "(Council) gave me a deep appreciation for my community. It makes you feel part of your town and responsible for every decision you make ... I'm going to miss the staff. We have been so blessed with our CAO Sarah Pacey. She makes a very complex job look so easy. She also makes being a Councillor a very enjoyable experience. I will definitely miss my fellow councillors and mayor." After serving two terms and getting to know the residents, Kinney says she'd like to see someone run for council that is "an independent thinker, logical, and has good old common sense. (They) have to have a love for the community and a passion to see it grow." Kinney, who raised her four daughters and grew to have ten grandchildren in town, reminisces: "I look forward to seeing our community grow and prosper in coming years. Florenceville-Bristol is the perfect place to raise a family. It is a place that offers a great deal and is wide open and willing to embrace growth."
